

Cyber Risk Protection for Cannabis Businesses

Safeguard Your Digital Assets, Reputation, and Operations

Cannabis businesses operate in a highly regulated and digitally dependent industry. With reliance on seed-to-sale tracking, point-of-sale systems and compliance reporting, even a brief cyber disruption can halt sales, trigger compliance violations and put licenses and reputations at risk.

WHY CYBER INSURANCE MATTERS

- Small and medium-sized enterprises are prime targets for cybercriminals due to perceived weaker IT defences.
- Between October 2024 and August 2025, organizations worldwide experienced 139,373 cyber incidents. (Statista Research Department, Dec 11, 2025)
- Between 2023 and 2024, the amount of money received by ransomware actors worldwide was nearly 814 million USD.
- Cannabis businesses often rely on third-party software vendors, creating ripple effects if a supplier's system is compromised.
- Unlike standard property or casualty policies, cyber insurance covers business interruption even without physical damage, along with ransomware incidents and system restoration costs – essential protection for cannabis businesses operating in high-risk digital environments.
